HandL GCLID Reporter

GCLID, short for Google Click Identifier, is a unique and hihgly encrypted tracking parameter that Google uses internally to transfer information between your Google Ads account and your Google Analytics account. As you know, GCLID is not directly available in Google Ads, so it isn't possible to associate GCLID data with the users/campaign/location in Google Ads.

HandL UTM Grabber allows tracking GCLID throughout the conversion. With the GCLID collected and GCLID reporter, now you can create daily report associating every single GCLID to your campaign, ads groups and even to the level of ads creative. You can also see which location GCLID is associated, and if it is search ads, you can see the exact (or phrase) keywords used for corresponding GCLID value. In addition to that, you'll see the placement, click type (engagement or headline), device, ads network and more.

AI-Powered Insights Just For You

Here's what our AI has discovered from your marketing data

What's Working Well

The business seems to be thriving with campaigns associated with Google and direct email sources; notably campaigns like 'exclusive_offer' and 'seasonal_offer' through search and email have high engagement. LinkedIn and Facebook also show consistent activity indicating strong presence in social campaigns.

Areas for Improvement

Twitter campaigns and content-driven UTM parameters seem less effective, with campaigns like 'back_to_school', 'spring_clearance', and 'summer_launch' indicating lower conversion or engagement, possibly pointing to a mismatch in medium suitability or content relevance.

Recommended Action Items

Focus on amplifying Google search and direct email campaigns as they drive more engagements. Optimize social media campaigns on Facebook and LinkedIn by exploring different times and targeted content that resonates with the audience. Experiment with Twitter content strategy to refine messaging and improve appeal. Consider personalized email sequences to enhance direct engagements.

Additional Insights

Higher opt-ins are clustered around the 11:00 AM - 1:00 PM time frame, possibly indicating peak engagement hours. Days with content-driven campaigns like 'valentines' and 'new_year' seem to have potential for growth if optimized, suggesting testing different content strategies or more targeted demographic or psychographic segmenting.
